A Family Idea

In 2015, I was confronted by my nieces and nephew about wanting to write a children's book. At the time, Lyric was ten, Jaelyn seven and Devin was five years old. The kiddos were so cute and excited. Each of them started telling me about what they wanted to write. The ideas kept intensifying and became super excited with them. On that day, they brainstormed their ideas on the living room ottoman. I stood there watching them, I smiled and had to snap a photo. All of them were so young and wanted to write a book, just like their aunt.

Time passed on and the kids became busy with school and other extra curriculum activities, it soon put the Adventures of the Children's Story on a halt. During Covid, we mourned the lost our beloved father and papa, and it seemed that all the excitement we once had for this book idea faded in our grief.

But as we healed, the idea was rekindled and we were able to bring our ideas together collectively and finish the stories as a family.

We hope you enjoy it!
